

Local Food Resources for The Homewood Campus Community 2022 Edition

This list of food resources was created for the Johns Hopkins Homewood Campus community. All locations offer either free or discounted food, are within reasonable walking distance of 2 miles, and are actively serving members of the community during the COVID-19 pandemic, as of January 2022. These churches, pantries, and gardens were sourced specifically for the community of the Johns Hopkins Homewood Campus, but this list can be used by anyone who needs it.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION

Baltimore Community Fridge

This communal fridge, accessible at all times, is part of a larger nation-wide movement to rescue surplus food from restaurants and feed hungry community members. In addition to produce, pre-made meals and processed food are donated. There are 2 other community fridges in the city outside this 2 mile Homewood campus radius.

FURTHER RESOURCES

1. Too Good To Go is a mobile application that connects customers to restaurants and stores that have unsold food surplus. The app will inform you of food available in your area, and you can reserve a meal for pickup. The meals are usually $3 - $6.
2. Food Rescue Baltimore has another list of food resources in the city. LINK

We hope this document has been a helpful resource. It will be updated seasonally to include any resources that become available or unavailable. Reach out with questions, comments, and suggestions about the resource itself to the Homewood Recycling Office or Office of Sustainability. If you have questions about the pantries or restaurants themselves, please call or connect on their social media platforms provided above.
